

FAT CATS & UNDERDOGS: WORK, CLASS, AND THE AMERICAN DREAM

Using the concept of the "American Dream" to examine work, class, and social mobility, this learning community offers a choice of courses that help students appreciate the power of class to shape our individual lives and our culture. A prevailing belief in America is that we are a "classless" society. However, these courses explore ways that the inequalities of class, ethnicity, race, and gender interrelate to sustain the power and interests of economic elites. Although courses are linked, each will be graded separately.

Register for both

ENG 257, Margaret Bayless (TR 8:30-9:20 a.m., CRN 1603) and WR 123, Bill Woolum (TR 10:00-11:20 a.m., CRN 1568).

Registration in one of the following courses is also recommended:

ECON 250 Phil Martinez (MW 1:00-2:50 p.m., CRN 1231)

ES 250 Phil Martinez (MW 1:00-2:50 p.m., CRN 1477)

HST 203 Sheila Broderick (MWF 10:00-10:50 a.m., CRN 1696)

WR 121, Michael McDonald (MWF 12:00-12:50 p.m., CRN 1535)